

REPORT2020

INITIATIVES FOR DIVERSITY EXCELLENCE ACCESS & SUCCESS

SEED IDEAS is a systemwide funding opportunity that is administrated by the Office of Student Equity Excellence and Diversity. SEED is an integral part of the UH system with multiple programs that have a firm committment towards addressing discrimination and social injustice through program activities that make our campuses more inclusive. IDEA projects introduce diversity into research, outreach and recruitment, trainings and professional symposiums speaker initiatives and through the performng arts.

Some examples of diversity awards include research in health disparities within our communities, developing multilingual platforms for public access and expanded outreach and recruitment activities for communities underrepresented in higher education. Other projects included invited guest speakers to address gender and sexual orientation issues and workshops for teachers new to the virtual classroom. The variety of awards are described below.

Members of the review committee:

Norman Arancon, UH Hilo Professor of Horticulture, College of Tropical Agriculture

Sandra Chang, UH John A Burns School of Medicine, Professor of Medicine and Medical Microbiology

Joshua Ka`akua, VP for Community Colleges, Academic Affairs Program Officer

Tara O`Neill, UH Mānoa College of Education, Associate Professor of Curriculum Studies and Science Eduction, Director of Institute for Teacher Education.

John Signor, Leeward Community College, Associate Professor for Music

Ethan Caldwell, UH Mānoa, Asst. Professor Ethnic Studies

Each semester this systemwide group convene to review applications to award a total budget of $100,000 for fall and spring semesters. This year there were 53 awards. Covid made an impact on the number of applications but applicants met the challenge and adjusted their projects to address working with virtual platforms to facilitate projects.

Awards ranged from a few hundred dollars up to a maximum of $5000.

2020 Applications submitted by UH campuses: 3 Kapi`olani Community College, 3 Leeward Community College, 7 UH Hilo, 36 UH Mānoa, 4 UH West O`ahu - Total 53
