

Aloha UH Mānoa Undergraduate Students,

We are happy to announce the opening of the final submission cycle for the second volume of Mānoa Horizons. We invite submissions from all fields of inquiry and in different formats, whether in the form of a research paper or excerpt of a capstone thesis, an innovative approach to a problem, or a thought-provoking example of artistic expression, that pushes the horizons of academic scholarship in novel ways.

Online and in print...

The journal includes both print and online versions, which allows us to publish non-print submissions such as audio or video clips, photographs, and other media. The print issue includes selected outstanding works, as well as the titles and abstracts of an additional number of selections published in full on the journal's website: <http://manoa.hawaii.edu/undergrad/horizons/>

Who can submit?

All work whose primary investigators, performers, or authors are undergraduate students will be considered. The work must have been conducted or completed during the 2016-2017 academic year (summer 2016, fall 2016, and spring 2017). Co-authored works can be submitted, but all contributors should be undergraduate students enrolled at UHM during the semester when the work was completed. If you graduate during the 2016-2017 year, you can submit work conducted while you were still enrolled.

My project isn't a research paper or essay. Can I still submit it?

YES! All kinds of undergraduate work are welcome: creative installations, recitals, art projects, creative writing, exemplary reports, presentations, and other forms of scholarship can also be published in Mānoa Horizons. Creative works submitted to the website should be accompanied by an Artist Statement. See the Artist Statement link under Submit Your Work on the website for more details.

When is the deadline?

Submissions are due no later than May 1, 2017. Students whose work is not accepted for publication during this final round do not have the revise and resubmit option. All student works undergo peer review by members of the Editorial Board. Reviewers' anonymous feedback is sent directly to the email provided by the student who submits the work online, along with the editorial decision. All works undergo substantial revision before publication.

How to submit your work...

The online submission form, and instructions for preparing your contribution are on our website here: <http://manoa.hawaii.edu/undergrad/horizons/submission/>

Please also carefully read the FAQs posted at the following link: <http://manoa.hawaii.edu/undergrad/horizons/faqs/>

We are also holding a logo and cover design contest! The logo will appear where appropriate for the journal, including the journal website, printed publication, email signature, and other related media. The full-color journal cover will be published by the University of Hawai'i Press in print and digital formats.

The designs should be a creative interpretation/play on the title of the journal, appeal to undergraduates and faculty, and convey the wide range of possibilities for research and creativity in various academic disciplines. Winning artist(s) will be credited and featured in an article about them and their work in the journal.

For more information, including design requirements and submission guidelines, please visit: <http://manoa.hawaii.edu/undergrad/horizons/2017/02/15/fall2017design/>

Deadline for design submissions is May 1, 2017.
