

ECONOMICS

POLITICS

SECURITY

ASAN 312: CONTEMPORARY ASIAN CIVILIZATIONS

TUESDAYS & THURSDAYS 12:00-1:15 PM (SPRING 2019)

Is Asia headed toward peace or conflict? Can shared interests and economic interdependence bring countries together, or will historical disputes and political tensions tear them apart? After this course, you'll be able to put current events into the context of major economic, political, and security trends in Asia, including Japan, China, South Korea, North Korea, Southeast Asia, India, and the United States. We'll also cover transnational topics like trade, territorial disputes, nuclear weapons, cybersecurity, energy, health, environment, migration, crime, and pop culture.

No prerequisites. Open to undergraduate students from all majors!

Questions?

Contact Professor
Kristi Govella
kgovella@hawaii.edu