

ASAN 750 C/J/K WRITING & RESEARCH SEMINAR: CHINA, JAPAN, AND KOREA

MONDAYS 4:00-6:30 PM (SPRING 2019)

Are you a graduate student working on a project related to China, Japan, or Korea? Would you like to improve your writing and learn more about how to "do research"? The goal of this interdisciplinary seminar is to support each student in completing a research paper on a topic of their choice while also providing a structured overview of the writing and research process. We cover research questions, abstracts, literature reviews, argumentation, conceptualization, writing skills, and presentation strategies. The latter part of the course introduces students to different methodological approaches, pairing conceptual readings with applied examples from recent research on Northeast Asia. Throughout the course, students will discuss their research project and receive feedback.

No prerequisites. Open to graduate students from all departments!

Questions?
Need help registering?

Contact Professor
Kristi Govella
kgovella@hawaii.edu