

Table 3.9. Common terms for behavioral research

Term	Definition
ethology	the scientific study of animal behavior; a sub-topic within biology stimulus (pl. stimuli)	a change in the environment that can be detected by a living animal response	behavior resulting from a stimulus or trigger event movement	the act of motion; includes locomotion and stationary motion locomotion	movement of the whole organism from one location to another