METHODOLOGY: Performances Lenses & Weightings

The QS World University Rankings® have been published since 2004. Whilst the headline measures have not changed since 2005, we introduce refinements to provide even stronger results year after year.

Academic Reputation
Taken from the QS Global Academic Reputation Survey, here we evaluate the perceptions of worldwide academics on which universities are academically excellent. 151,000 responses were used in this year’s analysis.

Employer Reputation
Taken from the QS Global Employer Reputation Survey, here we evaluate the perceptions of worldwide employers on which universities produce the best graduates. 99,000 responses were used in this year’s analysis.

Faculty Student Ratio
This is the ratio of academic staff to students. A higher number of staff:students is an indirect indicator of a university’s commitment to learning and teaching.

Citations per Faculty
This ratio measures the average number of citations obtained per faculty member, and is an estimate of the impact and quality of the scientific work produced by universities. This indicator is calculated using data from Scopus. To avoid anomalous results, an affiliation cap is applied discarding papers with an unusually high number of affiliations. Self-citations are excluded and citation counts are normalized, ensuring that citations achieved in each of the five broad faculty areas are weighted equally (more information: https://support.qs.com/hc/en-gb/articles/360021456540-Faculty-Area-Normalization).

International Faculty Ratio
The International Faculty Index is simply based on the proportion of faculty members that are international. It is a proxy measure for how internationally attractive the university is to academic staff.

International Students Ratio
Similar to the international faculty ratio, this not only serves as a proxy for how attractive the university is to international students, but how internationalised the student experience will be.

Employment Outcomes
Employment Outcomes reflects the ability of institutions to ensure a high level of employability for their graduates, while also nurturing future leaders who go on to make an impact in their respective fields. For this, we have combined two metrics, widely known from our QS Graduate Employability Rankings: Graduate Employment Rate and Alumni Outcomes Index (more information: https://support.qs.com/hc/en-gb/articles/4744563188508-Employment-Outcomes-).

International Research Network
IRN Index reflects the ability of institutions to diversify the geography of their international research network by establishing sustainable research partnerships with other higher education institutions. It also reflects the efficiency of this as we look at the diversity of partner locations against the efforts needed to achieve such a diversity (more information: https://support.qs.com/hc/en-gb/articles/360021865579-International-Research-Network-IRN-Index).

For all papers and citations numbers on this page, we do not count certain affiliations (such as overseas campuses) and apply our usual paper-type and affiliation-cap exclusions (https://support.qs.com/hc/en-gb/articles/360019107590). A technical explanation of the citations normalization process can be accessed here: https://support.qs.com/hc/en-gb/articles/360021456540-Faculty-Area-Normalization

International Research Partners and Research Partner Location figures represent the average across five faculty areas (see IRN methodology). https://support.qs.com/hc/en-gb/articles/360021865579-International-Research-Network-IRN-Index

Students and faculty figures above are full-time equivalent (FTE). In those cases where only the headcounts were available, the FTE was calculated by applying a ratio based on country or regional average. When breakdown by undergraduate and postgraduate was available we used the sum total.

Scopus numbers extracted in February 2022 – variation in live database is to be expected.
