SCHOLARLY/RESEARCH & GRANT ACTIVITIES

Research Projects & Extramural Grants

Title: Project P'INK: Nā Ohi Pono

Principal Investigators: Lynette Paglinawan, Ka'ai'ai Paglinawan, LeShay Keliiohokai, Samantha Keaulana-Scott, Ilima Ho-Lastimosa

Project Period: 6/1/2023 - 06/30/2023

Amount: $50,000

Funder: Kamehameha Schools Māhūahua Ka Lae

Objective: Evaluate and document the first year of a ho'oponopono training program for Native Hawaiian aspiring ho'oponopono practitioners.

Role: Lead researcher

Title: MALAMA Aquaponics

Principle Investigators: Jane Chung-Do, Ilima Ho-Lastimosa

Project period: 2022-2027

Amount: $1,750,000

Funder: Research Centers in Minority Institutions

Ola HAWAII, National Institute of Minority Health and Health Disparities (2 U54 MD007601-36), $22,557,840, Principal Investigators: Jerris Hedges, MD and Noreen Mokuau, PhD.

This renewal multicomponent center grant application from University of Hawai'i was submitted in response to RFA-MD-22-002, Research Centers in Minority Institutions (RCMI) (U54 Clinical Trials Optional). The objective of the Center is to advance minority health and health disparities research in Hawai'i. Three proposed research projects cover health research addressing disparities in diabetes, reducing food insecurity, mitigating cardiometabolic risks, and understanding the pathophysiologic mechanisms of post-acute sequelae of SARS-CoV-2 infection (PASC). MALAMA Study is one of these three research projects ($1,750,000) with the goal to test the efficacy of the MALAMA intervention in three Native Hawaiian communities to assess on diet, food security, and cardiometabolic risk.

Role: Co-Investigator for the MALAMA Study

Title: Project P'INK: Au Huli

Principal Investigators: Samantha Scott and 'Ilima Ho-Lastimosa

Project Period: 1/1/2021 - 06/30/2022

Amount: $15,000

Funder: Community Change Leadership Network

Objective: Project P'INK: Au Huli is an all-women's program that utilizes traditional wayfinding to restore the pu'uwai (heart, emotional health), 'ike (intellectual health), na'au (guts, the place of the heart or mind of a Native Hawaiian, mental and spiritual health), and kino (body, physical health) for participants to heal themselves, their families, their communities, and the Hawaiian nation.

Role: Principal Investigator

Title: Ke Ola O Ka 'Āina (KOOKA). The role of 'āina connectedness in Native Hawaiian health

Principal Investigator: Mapuana Antonio

Project Period: 9/1/21 – 7/31/22

Funder: Center for Pacific Innovations, Knowledge, and Opportunities (PIKO), National Institute of General Medicine Sciences (#U54GM138062), $22,557,840, Principal Investigators: Joseph Keawe'aimoku Kaholokula, PhD and Neal A. Palafox, MD, PhD.

KOOKA study aims to develop a quantitative scale of 'āina (land or that which feeds) connectedness as a measure of resilience and health in Native Hawaiians. The primary research question is: "What are the key constructs to consider for a scale measuring 'āina connectedness in Native Hawaiians?" The long-term objective of this project is to develop a scale that assesses the role of 'āina connectedness in the health and wellbeing of Native Hawaiians and to test future health interventions that incorporate connection to 'āina. This pilot project is the first step in understanding the role of 'āina connectedness in the health and wellbeing of Native Hawaiians. The resulting scale will have wide application and utility for the growing number of 'āina based programs that address Native Hawaiian health disparities, and in other Indigenous communities who have similar land-based values.

Role: Co-Investigator

Title: Addressing Racism Through Policy & Systems Change Within Universities: A Pilot Project

Principal Investigators: Chevelle Davis, Marie Plaisime, Samantha Scott, Jake Sumibcay

Project Period: 1/1/2021 - 12/31/2021

Amount: $40,000

Funder: Robert Wood Johnson Foundation Health Policy Research Scholars

Objective: Determining racial climate within universities to impact systems-level change.

Support from Health Policy Research Scholars, a Robert Wood Johnson Foundation program

Role: Co-Principal Investigator

Title: Health Policy Research Scholars Dissertation Award

Principal Investigator: Samantha Scott

Project Period: 1/1/2020-12/31/2021

Amount: $10,000

Funder: Robert Wood Johnson Foundation

Objective: Support from Health Policy Research Scholars, a Robert Wood Johnson Foundation program, to support dissertation research activities.

Title: Ke Ola O Ka 'Āina. The role of 'āina connectedness in Native Hawaiian health

Principal Investigator: Mapuana Antonio

Project Period: 7/1/19 – 6/30/20

#2U54MD007601-31

This study aims to develop a quantitative scale of ‘āina (land or that which feeds) connectedness as a measure of resilience and health in Native Hawaiians. The primary research question is: “What are the key constructs to consider for a scale measuring ‘āina connectedness in Native Hawaiians?” The long-term objective of this project is to develop a scale that assesses the role of ‘āina connectedness in the health and wellbeing of Native Hawaiians and to test future health interventions that incorporate connection to ‘āina. This pilot project is the first step in understanding the role of ‘āina connectedness in the health and wellbeing of Native Hawaiians. The resulting scale will have wide application and utility for the growing number of ‘āina based programs that address Native Hawaiian health disparities, and in other Indigenous communities who have similar land-based values.

Role: Graduate Research Assistant

Title: Project P’INK

Principal Investigators: LeShay Keli’iholokai, Phoebe Hwang, Ilima Ho-Lastimosa, Samantha Scott, Malia Ka’io, Kahau Vegas, Amber Arthur, Lily Utai

Project Period: 04/2019-04/2020

Amount: $10,000

Funder: Atherton Family Foundation

Objective: Project P’INK is an all-women’s program that utilizes traditional and contemporary art to restore the pu’uwai (heart, emotional health), ‘ike (intellectual health), na’au (guts, the place of the heart or mind of a Native Hawaiian, mental and spiritual health), and kino (body, physical health).

Title: Kūlana Noi’i Award from the Biocultural Community Engagement Funding

Principal Investigator: Samantha Keaulana-Scott

Faculty Rep: Mapuana Antonio

Amount: $1,000

Funder: Biocultural Community Engagement Funding

Objective: Explore ‘āina connectedness through the lens of Waimānalo Limu Hui members.

Title: Robert Wood Johnson Health Policy Research Scholars

Principal Investigator: Samantha Scott

Project Period: 10/2017-10/2021

Amount: $120,000

Funder: Robert Wood Johnson Foundation

Objective: Health Policy Research Scholars is a national leadership program supported by the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation to build equity by investing in scholars from populations traditionally underrepresented in graduate programs whose research, connections, and leadership will inform and influence policy toward a Culture of Health.
